SNAPSHOT

Southern Utah is well known as a destination for scenic natural wonders within some of the most popular national parks in the US. It is also home to two high-elevation ski areas that receive generous helpings of The Greatest Snow on Earth®. This itinerary allows you to experience it all in the relative solitude of the season, with snowy hikes, snoeshoeing, skiing and more.

DAY 1	Arrive in Springdale & Zion National Park
DAY 2	Zion National Park (Angels Landing) to Brian Head Resort
DAY 3	Ski Brian Head and Cedar Breaks National Monument
DAY 4	Bryce Canyon National Park
DAY 5	Ski Eagle Point and Tushar Mountain Range

Angels Landing

DAY 1 - ZION NATIONAL PARK

DRIVING DISTANCE: 15 KM

Zion Narrows

Start your adventure from Springdale, a scenic village located on the edge of Zion National Park. Head to the local outfitters and gear up to explore the famed Narrows within Zion. For this unique expedition, you'll need a dry suit or high waders to stay warm as you walk up the Virgin River beneath giant cliff walls covered in ice and snow. This daylong outing will give you a unique and nearly solitary experience within the towering walls of Zion Canyon.

STAY: SpringHill Suites by Marriott. Grab dinner in Springdale then spend the evening relaxing under the stars. Thanks to its elevation and remoteness, Springdale has incredible stargazing and is recognised as an International Dark Sky Community.

Zion Narrows

DAY 2 - ANGELS LANDING

DRIVING DISTANCE: 180 KM

Angels Landing - Brian Head

Your second day in Zion starts with the breathtaking, bucket list hike - Angels Landing. The challenging 8.7 km round trip trail is packed with hikers in the high seasons, but much less crowded in winter.

The hike climbs up roughly 1,500 vertical feet along the narrow fin of stone that reaches a top elevation of 5,790 feet. Occupying the center of the Big Bend of Zion Canyon, the summit commands a spectacular 360-degree panorama of rugged spires and towering walls.

Take the morning for this spectacular hike and then make the 160km drive to Brian Head Lodge, located in the friendly village at the base of the Southern Utah skiing destination.

Note: Hiking Angel's Landing requires a permit.

DAY 3 - BRIAN HEAD

Morning skiing; afternoon snowmobiling

Click into your skis at Brian Head and enjoy the unique views of snowy slopes and red rock landscapes off in the distance. As an afternoon option, check in with Thunder Mountain Motorsports for a guided snowmobile tour through aspen groves and winter wonderland meadows to a lookout above Cedar Breaks National Monument.

STAY: Spend a second night at Brian Head Lodge. Set in a timber-and-stone lodge in the charming ski resort town, the Lodge is a rustic, yet upscale hotel, just a two minute shuttle ride to the slopes.

DAY 4 - BRYCE CANYON

DRIVING DISTANCE: 120 KM

Bryce Canyon National Park

Enjoy a drive along a portion of the Utah All-American Road: Scenic Byway 12. Your destination is Bryce Canyon National Park, which, at up to 9,000 feet above sea level, becomes a winter playground among an incredible vista of snowcapped hoodoos. Unlock the secret to Bryce's wonders with a winter trek to the canyon floor where you will stroll below the impossibly slender hoodoos towering above, or take a cross-country ski excursion along the canyon's rim.

STAY: The historic Ruby's Inn was founded in 1916 by intrepid pioneer and rancher Reuben "Ruby" C. Syrett. The property now features two lodges and is home to one of the only liquor stores in the area, and the family-friendly Cowboy's Buffet & Steak Room.

Bryce Canyon National Park

DAY 5 - EAGLE POINT RESORT

DRIVING DISTANCE: 137 KM

Ski Eagle Point and Snowshoe in the Tushar Mountains

End your tour at Eagle Point Resort in the Tushar Mountain Range. This unique resort is known for the hidden stashes of powder that exist days after a storm and a low skier count, making it feel almost as if you're riding lifts in your own private ski area.

Eagle Point is only open Fridays - Sundays, so plan to be there on a weekend. There's a variety of terrain for all skill levels including some of the steepest pitches in Utah. The friendly village is also the gateway to exploring the Tushars on snowshoes.

STAY: For your final night, cap it all off with sunset in a hot tub on the patio of one of Eagle Point's luxe Canyonside Collection accommodations.

Eagle Point Resort

Choose your starting point

This winter road trip itinerary has been designed as an extension of a Utah snow holiday spent skiing and snowboarding the resorts outside Salt Lake City.

The drive from Salt Lake City down to the starting point of Springdale is 4.5 hours. But if you aren't too keen on a long drive, there is also the option of flying into Vegas and hiring a car from there, as the drive up to Springdale from Vegas is a much quicker 2.5 hours.

This also means a shorter drive back on the way out to fly home.
